Formed by baroque violinist and Artistic Director, Julia Fredersdorff in 2016, Van Diemen's Band is an exciting new chamber orchestra dedicated to the historically informed performance of music from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Since relocating to the UK from Adelaide, bass Thomas Flint has appeared regularly as a soloist and worked with many of the UK's finest ensembles, including The Tallis Scholars, Alamire, Tenebrae, BBC Singers, La Nuova Musica, London Voices and Stile Antico.

Van Diemen's Band transports you to the 17th Century tradition of Abendmusik –evening music for the people – from Lübeck's Marienkirche to Hobart Town Hall.

The Abendmusik tradition was established in the mid 17th century by Franz Tunder and subsequently handed down to Dietrich Buxtehude, his successor who held the post until his death in 1707.

During Buxtehude's tenure, these concerts became so famous around Europe that they anecdotally inspired the young Johann Sebastian Bach to walk more than 400km from Arnstadt to attend them in Advent, 1705.

Joined by UK Bass, Thomas Flint, the splendour of Austro-German Baroque comes to life in this program of works by Schmelzer, Biber, JC Bach, and Marien-kirche organists, Tunder and Buxtehude.
