Terrapin recently celebrated their 40th birthday and have been responsible for introducing hundreds of thousands of young Tasmanians to the magic of theatre. Their work is increasingly in demand around the world and this school holiday production comes on the back of a season at Sydney Opera House.

Scaredy Cat comes from a long line of fierce hunters, hired for the biggest jobs, with the meanest rodents. When an urgent call comes in, it's Scaredy's turn to do the family proud. Only problem is, she's terrified of mice.

Trapped in an old basement with three cunning critters, Scaredy is bullied and all alone – or so she thinks. As the antique furniture in the basement comes creakily to life, a whole new world of eccentric characters is revealed, leading Scaredy on a journey she'll never forget.

THEATRE ROYAL SAYS ...

What is a Relaxed Performance?

In our Relaxed Performances we focus on relaxing or adapting the theatre environment while maintaining the creative integrity of the show.

In a Relaxed Performance:

- We may make minor changes to sensory elements of a show such as reducing bright lighting or loud noises.
 - There is a relaxed attitude to noise and movement.
 - You are welcome to bring in, and use, stimming devices.
 - The theatre doors remain open; and the house lights remain on, but dimmed, throughout the performance.
 - You can leave the venue at any time and a designated quiet area is available.
 - Take a virtual tour of our venues to help prepare for your visit.
- Theatre Royal | Virtual tour by Sky Avenue Photography & Design
